FOR SALE LEASEHOLD

Set within a substantial Victorian villa with notable local history, this ground floor apartment offers well-proportioned accommodation, private outdoor space, and the benefit of parking and a garage, perfectly located within an established residential area.

The villa was once home to John Snellgrove, founder of Marshall & Snellgrove (later part of Debenhams), a philanthropist and prominent figure in the town's Victorian society. In 1907, the property was sold to Helen Cubbit, another well-known resident of the era. Like many of Torquay's grand villas, it has since been divided into apartments, whilst retaining elements of its original character.

The property is positioned on Lincombe Hill, one of Torquay's established and sought-after residential areas, traditionally favoured during the Victorian era for the construction of substantial coastal villas.

The surrounding area remains characterised by similar period properties, giving a strong sense of heritage and setting.

The property is accessed via level entry, believed to be through the original front door, offering convenient step-free access to the apartment.

The main living room is a generously sized space, featuring an attractive coved ceiling with decorative fruit detailed frieze, suggesting its original use may have been a dining room in the Victorian period. This room opens directly onto a private terrace, providing a pleasant outdoor seating area with views over the surrounding area towards the sea. The terrace is a particularly useful and private external space. The kitchen is finished in a contemporary style, offering a practical and modern working area.

The principal bedroom also benefits from direct access onto the terrace. There are two further bedrooms, offering flexibility for guests, home office use, or additional accommodation as required. The apartment is completed by a family bathroom and a separate en-suite to the principal bedroom.

OUTSIDE

To the rear of the property are communal gardens for residents' use. In addition, the apartment benefits from two parking spaces and a lock-up garage, providing valuable storage and parking provision.

Lincombe Hill is well placed for access to Meadfoot Beach, an area of natural beauty, with its beachfront café and colourful bathing huts.

VIEWING BY APPOINTMENT ONLY

Nearby can be found Wellswood, sought after for its village style ambience, offering a selection of independent shops, cafés, and everyday amenities. Torquay harbour and town centre are also within convenient reach providing a wider range of leisure, shopping, and dining options.

Torquay itself offers a well-rounded coastal lifestyle. Beyond its shoreline, the town benefits from a range of facilities including restaurants, theatres, leisure centres, and marina activities, alongside green spaces, coastal walks, and surrounding countryside.

It is a location that supports both full-time living and second-home use, with a balance of relaxed coastal living and everyday convenience.

CONECTIVITY

Road links are excellent, with the South Devon Highway providing swift a direct route to the A380, connecting easily with Exeter and the M5 for wider travel across the South West, Midlands and beyond.

Torquay has regular rail services with direct connections to London Paddington, with additional links into the national intercity network via Newton Abbot, offering fast services to major destinations across the country. Exeter Airport is also within easy reach by car and operates both domestic and international services.
